

News in brief from Soha Housing Marston woman an 'outstanding individual'

25 May 2011

Nasreen, a Soha Housing resident of Mary Price Close, is just one of four people in the South East nominated by the National Housing Federation as an 'outstanding individual' for her work in putting Soha under the microscope by leading the tenants' scrutiny group. This means she and her team examine the landlord's strategic decisions. Nasreen is co-presenting a series of seminars in Didcot in the Summer. Nasreen says, "the aim of the seminars is to encourage other tenants from all around the country to get into the driving seat as we have done."
